IN THE MIDDLE of Carson street late yesterday afternoon, a furious and much befuddled son of Gaul was to be seen standing midway of Carson street between the tailoring establishment of John Sutherland and the French drapery shop, opposite, defying the Canucks there congregated to mortal combat. He had divested himself of his outer garment and flung the same upon the street, and was rather timidly resisting a police maker, who had come upon him, as we passed by. This pugnacious person was a worthy son of Crispin, and he soon perempted the warrior to rehabilitate himself so that the battle, as we witnessed it, was a mere war of words. The parties of the second part, that is to say, the congregated Canucks, stood safely distant and jeered their challenger with the mucketeers known to the French Canadian way. The reader may be sure that Monsieur the warrior talked back in a tone of the hottest kind of defiance; also, that when a bystander from New York emitted a characteristic expression of imperfect French and very crude Saxon, they all, churlish and challenged, dried up, incontinently, in deep disgust.

Or a remarkable case of enlargement of the heart, last evening's Gold Hill News says: Dr. Van Zundt, resident physician of the County Hospital, reports the following singular case: Mr. Melville, who was brought to the Hospital on Wednesday, very low with the heart disease, died on the following day. An autopsy of the body revealed the fact that the heart was enlarged to the extraordinary weight of 20 ounces, with disease of the aortic valves. The weight of the human heart is between 8 and 10 ounces.

THE FENCING OFF of a corner of Mr. Jacob Tobriner's grocery store, observable to the passer-by, is being done in order to accommodate the new firm of Pixley & McConnell, stock brokers. These are Bob Pixley and Ike McConnell—the latter lately assistant cashier of the Carson Mint. Bob, as everybody knows is in the V. & T. telegraph office. Glad to see this business going on, and hope it may result in complete success.

Found Dead in His Bed.

Yesterday morning, about 6 o'clock one of the attendants at the Ormsby House discovered, through the open door of a room, the lifeless body of a man lying on his bed. He immediately informed Mr. Forrest, the night clerk, who went to the room indicated and there found that the dead body was that of Mr. D. Walley, the well-known proprietor of the Génie Hot Springs. Mr. Forrest locked the door of the room and at once went in search of Coroner Meder. He found that officer in a few moments and gave him the key to the room. When it had become known that Mr. Walley was dead, it was remembered by some of the inmates of the hotel that they had heard cries of distress about the hour of One; and it is probable that he died soon after that time. Upon examination of the premises, it was discovered that the deceased had opened the window of his room and the door, also. This was done, doubtless, to get air and make his cries of distress more readily heard. Mr. Forrest tells us that Mr. Walley returned soon after the night train had left, and that before going to bed he complained of not feeling well. Indeed, we hear that he had said that while at the Glenbrook, lately, he came near choking to death in the night-time. A post mortem examination which was made on an officiality by the county physician, Dr. Devore, yesterday, (assister by Drs. Waters and Webster,) revealed the fact that the immediate cause of death was a violent straining resulting from a severe contraction of the muscles of the lungs. Upon a close examination of the heart, it was ascertained that one of the ventricles was abnormally thick and the other quite as unusually thin, while the valves of the heart—the great artery which conveys the blood from the heart were in a diseased condition, and that the aorta itself was of an extraordinary size. The sack which contained the heart and the heart itself were filled with venous blood whose color and condition indicated the non-action upon it of the respiratory organs. It had not been erated, or subjected to the influence of atmospheric air, as it should have been. Also the lungs were distended with serum. The conclusion reached by these medical gentlemen is that the cause of death was a diseased condition of the heart. Mr. Walley, so we are informed by the Gold Hill News, was a native of Massachusetts and 52 years of age. We think he informed us, last Summer, that he took the hand where the Hot Springs are, in payment of a debt. Anyhow, when he first settled there he was very poor, indeed; and it was only by degrees that he and his excellent wife built up the houses and business there and made the same the very important watering place and resort that now it is. By all men Mr. Walley was held in high esteem as a person of perfect integrity and possessing the best qualities of a neighbor and citizen. His remains were to be removed to the Springs yesterday. We hear that his wife has only lately been seriously sick. The shock will be a heavy one to her. She will find wide sympathy in her distress. Mr. Walley was a member of the Masonic and Odd Fellows' societies.

THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, Hon. Lorenzo Sawyer, presiding, will meet at the usual hour on Monday.

THE CHICAGO Inter-Ocean says the last suggestion of a New York savan is an earth-bath for the cure of heated blood and ill temper, to be placed in the halls of Congress for common use. Mr. John Y. Brown, of Kentucky, is suggested as the first victim. He is to be voted a bath slumped therein by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and kept there until "done brown." Earth-baths were used with great effect in mediaval times for the cure of persons afflicted with scrofula, or strong drink. We remember a doctor in the army who used to have a regular assembly of skimmers seated around in a row with cupping glasses on their backs. What a beautiful picture might be presented in Congress by a mourner's bench, with half a dozen fire-eaters, each chewing the end of sweet and bitter fancies in an earth-bath.

FOUND DEAD.—Yesterday afternoon Thomas P. Ringo, a man employed by W. H. Clark at the toll house on the road leading to Secretcanyon, was found dead in his bed by his employer and Phillip Harris, a clerk in the employ of Mr. Clark. The circumstances causing his death are unknown, he at last accounts being well and showing no indications of sickness.—Eureka Sentinel, March 3.

Proceedings of the Ormsby Teachers' Institute.

PUBLIC SCHOOL HOUSE, CARSON,
Feb. 26, 1875.

The Ormsby County Teachers' Institute met pursuant to adjournment. The President not being present, Mr. Howe was chosen president pro tem.

The Institute then proceeded to the consideration of the Constitution and By-laws which were amended and adopted. These laws, as amended, impose fines on members and officers for non-attendance or non-performance of duties and orders the Secretary to report the substance of the proceedings to each of the daily papers of Carson within one week from the time of meeting.

The following officers were elected: L. S. Greenlaw, President; Miss Spence, Vice-President; Mr. Howe, Treasurer, and E. A. Moody, Secretary.

The analysis of the following problem was discussed: One-ninth of A's money is equal to one-thirteenth of B's. They each spend twelve dollars when one-third of A's is equal to one-fifth of B's.

The Institute then adjourned to meet the last Friday of March.

E. A. MOODY, Secretary.

THE BOARD OF TOWN TRUSTEES will meet at the County Clerk's office to-morrow evening.
